- If this project was developed successfully, it could see some potential to be deployed. If this becomes possible, I would be the first to use and test it out during my university studies. If others are also interested, I may also release it to them and I can request feedback from these users to further enhance and update the app. The project would resolve the main motivation which was to centralise functions university students already use on different apps, into a singular app. It would alleviate the issues of time, weariness and difficulty attempting to sync and use different apps. Unfortunately, important functions like communication and emails can't be implemented unless I develop my knowledge of python and networking to be advanced.
